the Car Deal Literacy to Library Connection

Half of all new car buyers fail to obtain the manufacturer's invoice price and negotiate the dealers mark-up (J.D. Powers & Associates, 2000). And few even consider negotiating the manufacturer's profit, often paying thousands more for automobiles.

The Car-Deal-Literacy-to-Library Tip: Don't leave school without it!

In an auto driven culture, car deal literacy should be education's job #2.

Classic Car Deal Trick$ to Avoid:

- Lemon laundering
- Grounding
- Curbstoning
- Double dipping
- Inflating invoices
- Flipping & turning
- Customer ping-pong
- Service shenanigans
- Deal packing
- Siphoning fuel
- Removal of bumpers or other items
- Hidden damage, defects, or repairs
- System selling
- Artificially shorting supply
- Highballing
- Lowballing
- Selling overlapping extended warranties

Fight gridlock, air pollution, and auto profit creep: Support auto alternatives for others.

Fight pollution: Curb the car; go carless, drive less, car & drive share, buy small & rent larger as needed, base mode on trip distance.

Because a lifetime of average auto ownership and operation costs now exceed $450,000, more than 2x the cost of median priced American homes, carlessnesshood offers perhaps the best opportunity to save money, the environment, and our economic and physical health. Don't have a CAR, man! and save. Or if you must: Consume consciously.
